The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A vertical crease is visible near the right edge, suggesting it was once folded. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light beige.

THE WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW

WEDDINGS.

(By Our Lady Contributor)

Whether there is a maid with soul so dead who never to herself has said:
"I'll till my own, my wedding day, Then I will make a mighty splash, My friends shall all with envy gush Their teeth when I give away."

These ritual lines of parody were written to me many years ago by an irreverent youth of my acquaintance.
Poor fellow, his cheerful tongue has been silent for a good number of years now. I wonder if what he said is true. Do we women all look forward to our wedding day as the great day of our lives? And, if we do, do we all want the wedding to be "a mighty splash?" I once heard of a wedding in a town where the bride was a boy, that a dance to a girl; what a battle is to a man, the girl wedding is to a woman—the great adventure, the supreme thrill of life. I well remember my own wedding day, twenty-seven years ago now, down in old Ontario. I could hardly believe what it is that stands out clearest now in my mind about it, and that my husband whom I had always seen till that moment as a pattern of obedient courtesy, promptly related to me by kicking the offender on the shins and calling him—but perhaps I should not say what he called him—it was a sharp disfigurement for me, but at the time I was too overcome by laughter to think of that.
It is a custom of long standing that weddings should be celebrated "with much publicity and festivity." I am not sure that I like this custom. If I had to be married all over again, I think I should prefer a very quiet wedding with only the smallest number of really intimate friends present.
I do not now like the idea of a large assemblage of all sorts of people, ranging from close friends to slight acquaintances, who come to scoff and remain to prey the wedding feast. I rather shrink from the fierce hail of criticism that beats upon a bride. If it is the rule to say nothing evil of the dead, it seems to be the rule equally to say nothing good of the bride—at least privately.
Of course, openly everyone says that she looked charming, and wasn't it a pretty wedding. I don't know what they mean by a pretty wedding. Most weddings look alike to me now. The bride wears a white dress, and the bridegroom wears a black suit. The bridesmaids are the only people who get much chance of ingenuity in their costumes. I believe they get most fun out of the affair of everybody. They are like the assistants (seconds I think they are called) at a courtship. They are the ones who have all the importance of being in the centre of the proceedings and none of the responsibility of winning the impending combat.

I wonder why everybody is supposed to like the bride immediately after a wedding. Seeing that she has just finished promising to love only her husband, it seems like a bad thing for her, or an unkind reminder that this is the last time she will be allowed to enjoy this freedom.
Of course, wedding presents are another questionable custom. I believe that for one wedding present given, with real enthusiasm, there must be fifty given grudgingly or at least in a spirit of resignation. The millions of silly jokes that have been made on this subject speak for themselves. It is time that this form of social blackmail was brought to an end. I should not be a bit surprised to learn that it is kept up chiefly through the efforts of some secret body of jewellers and makers of fish knives and forks who encourage wedding presents just as the wicked armament arms encourage war.

After all, a wedding is primarily an arrangement between two people only.
Nobody else is concerned in it, except possibly the bride's rejected suitors, and the girls who have loved and lost the bridegroom. I don't suppose anyone would suggest that these unfortunate should be formed into one band of chief mourners to march in procession behind the happy couple and sing dolorous chants before and

MENNONITES FIND MEXICO THE LAND OF DISILLUSION

Travellers from Canada Return to Prairies, Sadder But Wiser Men

Winnipeg, April 10.—Declaring promises of land flowing with the proverbial milk and honey in Mexico were but empty, and warning their compatriots against persuasions of land speculators here, the vanguard of a party of returning Mennonites, arrived from Sunday. More are on the way.

Food, land and climate were utterly condemned by the travellers, who declared conditions in the promised land very unbearable. They had left Canada chiefly to escape school regulations—when they arrived in Mexico they learned there were no schools.
"All who migrated south want to return, but many have no money," George Mueller, a member of the sadder and wiser band of five families who returned, asserted. "Some of them are being helped by Americans across the border."

Climate Was Terrible
The climate in the mythical promised land, held up as one of its chief attractions, was one of burning heat with land and stock by day and chill by night. Contrary to promises that it replied pulmonary trouble, it seemed aggravate it, the returned emigrants said. One man who went south for his health has never risen from his bed since his arrival.

Food was poor, rolled oats selling at 75 cents a box, and there were no modern cooking facilities. One woman in the party said she had never seen a cook stove while she was away. The Mexicans themselves seemed under-nourished and the Dublin, April 11.—Liam Lynch, chief of staff of the irregular forces, wounded and captured by Free State troops yesterday morning, died last night.

The death of Liam Lynch is regarded here as heralding the final collapse of the irregulars. Lynch was their chief of staff and a dominant figure in their councils. He had a powerful influence over Bannon, upon whom he worked in concert. Both men signed all important decisions and virtually controlled the Republican movement. When gaps were caused by the capture of their men, Lynch was always able to promptly fill their places.

His assistant was Liam Deasey, who, after he was arrested some time ago, and the death sentence imposed upon him, issued an appeal for peace.

Once Broke Parole
In the fighting against the British, Lynch and Deasey were chief assistants and close friends of the late Michael Collins. Later, however, Collins was unable to persuade them to accept the Anglo-Irish treaty.
Lynch was captured during the fighting at the Four Courts building in Dublin in June of last year, but was released, it is believed, on parole, which he broke.

Yesterday afternoon an additional batch of captured Republican correspondence was made public by the Free State army publicity bureau.
Among the communications was a letter from De Valera complaining that Lynch was not sending him reports and that "his silence is omious." In the letter De Valera defined his own attitude as a rejection of the treaty offered, no matter what the consequences.

he says in a letter:

"For seven years, I suffered terribly from Headaches and Indigestion, had belching gas, bitter stuff would come up in my mouth, often vomiting, and was terribly constipated. I took Fruit-a-lives and this grand fruit medicine made me well."

Alberta Got in the East

Perhaps the event of the greatest potential value to Alberta—and to all of Canada—during the past few days, has been the splendid reception which the important interests of the province have given Alberta's trial shipments of coal.

If the question of fair and reasonable transportation costs can be solved, then it looks like the dawn of a new era in the coal industry of this province.

If Alberta and Ontario can get together on this proposition, it will be a big step along the line—helping the mining industry here, producing traffic for the transportation companies, and benefiting consumers and industries in Ontario and Quebec.

These two provinces are said to import some $20,000,000 worth of coal. It would be a good piece of business for Canada if that money could be spent in Canada, instead of the bulk of it going outside the country.

The development of inter-Canadian trade in coal may mean the saving of some of Canada's big problems. Alberta's representatives in the east have wired Messrs. Graham and Rogers, and are encouraging an interview with Sir Henry Thornton on the question of transportation.

Provincial Secretary's Report

The annual report of the Provincial Secretary was presented to the House last week.

The revenue in the Secretary's branch was $2,088,346.64, as compared with $1,698,849.89 in 1921. Amount of interest received was $1,928,778 for 1922.

Calgary was next with $379,949; Lethbridge, $75,384; Regina, $121,072, or a total for the province of $571,179 compared with $719,232 in 1921.

The number of companies incorporated during the year amounted to 294 with a capitalization of $9,524,000.

Compulsory licensees numbered 39,964, an increase of 112 over 1921.

Attendance at the professional hockey games added considerable revenue to the provincial coffers under the amusement tax. This revenue from all sources of amusement in the towns and cities coming under the tax amounted to $289,631 a day, or $127,372 a month.

Life and fire insurance contributed a largely enhanced taxation revenue to the province last year under the heavy scale imposed by the government last session. The increase in the former being $28,778.78, and in the latter $125,909.49.

The railway paid by the province in 1922 was $124,340.23 and $72,331.34. Banks paid $25,500.00 against $24,800 in 1921.

The Corporations Tax Act the province garnered $482,691.33, against $335,859.72 the previous year.

These statistics are contained in the annual report of the provincial secretary, tabled by Premier Green, in the legislature Saturday.

The vehicle tax was $718,973.55 last year and $738,551.30 in 1921. Although the amusement tax was increased last session, the $128,825.01 revenue in 1922 was only $23,820.93 in excess of the 1921 receipts.

The new gasoline tax added $185,135.00. The railway mileage returned $183,530.00. Although the tax on coal was advanced this year from five cents to ten cents a ton, $285,650 was obtained was only $6,762 over 1921 collections.

Thirty-nine branches of chartered banks closed during the year. Some of these came about through the amalgamation of banking institutions.

Grain Shippers Via Vancouver

A total of 12,098,650 bushels of grain were handled at the terminal elevator at Vancouver during 1922.

According to a report made by Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce, of this amount 12,098,650 bushels were shipped.

Receipts at the elevator were $171,273.00 and total expenditure $73,585.00.

An experimental consignment of one thousand barrels of flour has left Vancouver for Panama. It is expected that this business will develop.

The Western Pacific Grain Elevator and Terminal Company has leased waterfront property for the purpose of erecting a grain elevator.

Wool Prices Advance

W. H. Tidale, Assistant General Manager of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Limited, who was one of the sheep judges at the Edmonton Spring Show, thinks that the outlook for the wool business is very favorable.

Wool prices for wellgraded Western range wools from 80c to 40c per pound, and for western downy wools from 25c to 35c per pound.

The world's market is said to be on a high plane, and the ranches in the south and the farmers throughout the province who can make a good job of it, are well diversified farming, can look forward to better prices than have prevailed during the past couple of years.

Albert sheep, fed on grain screenings at Fort William, found good markets in Toronto and London, and are selling in Toronto on March 20th at 16c per pound live weight, the lambs averaging 80 to 100 pounds each. Both wool and lamb prices are well advanced over the depressed levels of 1921, and are better than the prices prevailing in January 1924, before the war.

Craig, Deputy Minister; and Miss Leslie Montgomery, Director of Extension Service, last week, in Edmonton.
